Where Promise Grows Into Connection

The St. Louis Promise Zone has long been a foundation for sharing resources, building partnerships, and amplifying community voices. This space was created to support collaboration within the Zone and to ensure residents, organizations, and stakeholders stayed informed and connected.

As our work has grown, so has our reach. Over time, we've found that many of the conversations, relationships, and opportunities we support extend beyond the Promise Zone boundaries. To better reflect this evolution, and the broader network of people engaged in this work, we are transitioning this space to The Connection.

This change honors the Promise Zone while allowing us to represent more accurately what this platform has become: a place where communities across the region come together to share, learn, and build collectively.

As part of this refresh, we're inviting you to help us vote on a few things that will shape The Connection. Your voice will help shape the look and feel of this shared space.

Thank you for staying connected and for being part of this next chapter.

Cheers! Quen
